A Year Like No Other!

Remote setting

Hybrid setting

Full In-Person setting

Remote Setting

- Was a good baseline for hybrid setting.
- Teachers took great advantage of getting used to virtual learning.
- Many teachers began to explore different types of programs and virtual tools for the classroom.
- Despite the difficulty of the year, there are many positives that came from the virtual experience and the discovery of new educational tools is one of them.

Hybrid Setting

- Teachers were well prepared for the virtual setting and now made adjustments as a portion of the class was back in session.
- Teachers and students did an amazing job staying connected to the class when they were experiencing being in school for a portion of the time and remote for a portion of the time.
- The remote preparation at the beginning of the year made this process a little easier as teachers had experienced students in the remote setting and were able to adapt their teaching to meet the needs of all students.

Full In-person setting

- Still maintaining strong connections with students who selected to remain remote.
- There is certainly a new energy in the building, students are excited to be back!
- Teachers have made another adjustment to their instructional model and are using their class time with a focus on appropriate in-person strategies.
- Remote students are staying connected as if in class, our students are interacting in class and with those remote students.
- Many have said that to maintain the remote connection while we are back full in-person they treat the computer like a student.
- Although this has been ongoing all year, having most students back full in-person allows us more ways to connect with students to support an SEL Focus.

Good Morning Remington!
Today is Monday February 22, 2021
and it is a cycle day

Happy Birthday!

Today we wish a Happy Birthday to Jessica C. in 8th grade and Connor M. in 6th grade. I hope that you both have a great day!

Celebrating Langston Hughes

- Langston Hughes was an American poet, novelist, and playwright.
- His writings contributed to The Harlem Renaissance in the 1920's and reflected the culture of the black community.
- The following poem speaks to the importance of dreaming and hoping.

The yearbook wants your pics!

Calling all staff and students with pets....the yearbook wants selfies of you and your pets! Submit your picture using the Google Form on the landing page. Pictures will be accepted today and tomorrow.

Student and Staff Connections:

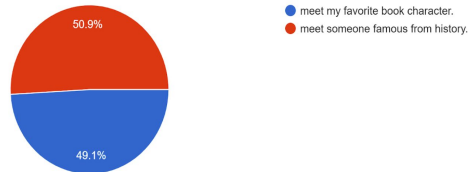

Kindness Challenge of the Day

Say something nice today

- ~Tell someone in your life how great they are or what they mean to you.
- ~Write a kind note to a friend or family member.
- ~Give a genuine compliment to 3 people today.

Would You Rather?

Yesterday, I asked, would you rather be able to meet your favorite book character or meet someone famous from history?
