Supporting Your Child with the Back-to-School Transition

As a parent, I find structure - and some understanding - go a long way in supporting my own kids as they transition from summer to the start of a new school year. Helping Kids Back Into the School Routine from the Child Mind Institute is a helpful reminder for any caregiver navigating the school transition next week.

Respectful Communication

Although most of the parents in the Franklin community approach concerns about their child with the goal of partnering around solutions in a way that is respectful, I am resharing some of my thoughts from last year to remind us all of the continued importance of civil communication. I remain committed to upholding the expectation that our FPS educators and school leaders are treated in a professional manner. As parents or guardians, we understand school-related issues concerning our children can cause anxiety, worry, and frustration. However, when these issues escalate, our school staff, including administrators, teachers, counselors, and nurses, too often receive angry and aggressive communications from parents/guardians. These interactions typically do not resolve the underlying concerns and leave both parties feeling frustrated. If you have concerns this year, please start by reaching out to the person closest to the issue to resolve and communicate respectfully. For more information on communication, please refer to our Communication Guidelines for FPS Families.

Parent Involvement

Last but not least, I encourage you to stay connected!

- Read all teacher communications, especially in the opening weeks of school.
- Stay current with each edition of your principal's newsletter.
- Join the Parent Communication Council (PCC) at your child's school. Keep an eye out for regular updates through newsletters or social media.
- Join the Special Education Parent Advisory Council: Franklin SEPAC website. Join their Facebook page to get the latest info about events and resources.
- Join a Boosters Organization.
- Attend Franklin School Committee meetings virtually, in-person, or by tuning into Franklin TV. The Franklin School Committee is the elected body that oversees the Franklin Public Schools and establishes goals, budget, and policies for the district, consistent with the requirements of the law and standards established by the Massachusetts Board of Education.
- Stay current with upcoming school events by bookmarking the 2023-24 FPS Calendar.

Enjoy your final full week of summer! We are ready to welcome our students back to school next week and look forward to a successful year of growth and achievement.

Respectfully,

Lucas Siguere

Superintendent
