RE: 2022-2023 School Calendar

The School Committee approved an initial 2022-2023 school calendar on February 8, 2022. At that time, the calendar did not include early release days for professional development, educator collaboration, or parent/teacher conferences. We have since discussed the proposed placement of the half days as an administrative team and we have conferred with the Franklin Educators' Association leadership.

There are fourteen early release days in the proposed calendar, an increase from previous years. We are advocating for this calendar since additional time is needed for both professional development as well as educator collaboration given the responsibilities involved in implementing initiatives of the District and School Improvement Plans. This calendar is also inclusive of additional time for spring conferences at both the elementary and middle school levels. Some half days are placed on Wednesdays, in order to capitalize on the additional time provided by Wednesday faculty meetings on those days.

Time on learning at all levels continues to be met under this proposed calendar. I recommend that the School Committee approve the 2022-2023 school calendar as discussed.
